ST. VALENTINE'S DAY C. H. WALTHER DIES OBSERVED BY MANY

Occasion Set Apart for Expresion of the "Tender

Passion."

Little Mary Louise got a valentine

You bet she did! Not only one, but many-little valentines, big valentines pictures and lacy ones, and all sorts greetings of the day, all telling her what a nice sort of child she is Yes, indeed. That's what it means to be a sunshine girl February 14, 1916. But whether her name was Mary or Constance, Alice or Gwendolin, Violet or Rose Marie, she got a valentine. All over the city today the postmen came in for particularly fond greetings, and doors opened to him with unusual promptness. That is, in homes where children are. Of course, "grown ups" get valentines, too, but-well, the children get most of them. To be scientific en a most unscientific day, it is safe to assert that a large percentage of all the large envelopes and packages handled by the city post office today were addressed to children.

Handwriting Disguised-Always. Such disguised handwriting, too

Sherlock Holmes himself would have had a hard time to find out who sen today's tender missives. But it is to

"To my Valentine," and ending,
"I love you."
Valentine boxes were conducted in a large number of classrooms of the public schools today, the children sending the little tokens to their fellow classmates. In some cases the children made their own valentines. Appropriate decorations were to be seen in many of the rooms.

Cupid.

in the month of June mournuring sea,
earth was all in tune
came to me;
arrow laid aside;
rould with me abide stented be.

how sweetly passed the hours by the silvery sea: te seemed garlanded with flowers while he sailed with me our little fairy boat the sunay waves sfoat, Careless, gay and free.

But there came a fatal hour, (That such things could be;) Proved my charms no further power; Naughty Cupid, he Took his silver bow and left, Never caring how bereft He was leaving me.

As he flew away so free,
I could hear him sing,
"Love you know must ever be Somewhere on the wing,"
But before he did depart,
Left his arrow in my heart
With its cruel sting.

So I'm all alone today; Good St. Valentine. Send some healing balm I pray To this heart of mine, For they say though love be gone. That the heart will still live on, Howsoe'er it pine.

But if you should chance to meet Cupid in his flight Turn aside, nor stay to greet That deceifful aprite. Heed my words. Beware! Reware! Lest you, too, some day shall share My unhappy plight.

For, of all the days on the calendar, St. Valentine's day is peculiarly a day of personal celebration. Christmas is celebrated en masse, and so is Easter, and so is the Fourth of July, and so are most all the other days, both of course. But St. Valentine's day is celebrated after this fashlon:

ficers attribute escape from serious illiness of those taken ill at the banquet.

The poison used was white oxide of arsenic. Dr. F. O. Tonney says that his estimate showed that the portions served each guest contained 1½ grains of the drug. His calculations showed that the entire kettle of soup contained 450 grains. This development was regarded as significant by detectives working on the case.

In the amateur laboratory of Crones an ounce bottle said to have contained arsenic, but which was empty, was found. An ounce of the drug contains 480 grains.

Crones disappeared on the night of the banquet.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, January 31.—The remarkable stand which has been made by Maj. Gen. Charles V. F. Townshend and his comparatively small body of British troops at Kut-el-Amara, Mesopotamia, where for nearly two months they have been besieged by a large army of Turks, has raised Gen. Townshend to a high place in the esteem of the English public.

Great Student of Napoleon. Gen. Townshend is said to have his way up to a high comthrough sheer merit. When he was only a lieutenant he beone of the most brilliant soldiers the He studied every work on the military came an avid student of Napoleon theories and practices of that great general. He made it a rule to study seven Ottoman troops and kept his little force intact. Every dispatch which has come through from the commander has been read with deepest interest by the public that has feared that the relieving army, which is said to have been held up by natural obstacles, Gen. Townshend's recent report that he had sufficient supplies for his sold diere partly relieved the minds of the British people, who now are anxiously awaiting the outcome.

Made Brilliant Retreat.

When the full story is told of the battle of Ctesiphon, the retreat to Kut and the siege, it is expected by the British to make as thrilling a chapter as any in the history of the world war and the name of Gen. Townshend will occupy an important place in that story. The conflict at Ctesiphon was desperate work and the general himself fought as fiercely as any of his soldiers, who that day put to flight a body of Ottoman troops said to have been six times their number. There were critical moments and it was at these times that Gen. Townshend showed himself to be a cool and resourceful commander and an able
